From the water and dirt repellent outer, to the inner wicking Airmesh lining or the Outlast® temperature regulating fabric. Each fabric has been carefully selected to ensure each layer fulfils its required functional purpose. This is combined with key construction methods both internally and externally in which every stitch is counted.

DuPont Teflon® Fabric protector is applied to the outer fabric to increase the garments protection from water, dirt and stains.

Removable CE Protectors Knox CE certified protectors are added to the shoulders, elbow and back

Superfabric® ceramic aminated panels in impact zones. Superfabrics are highly technical fabric applications that can be found on garments like the Navigator Jacket.
Offering high levels of abrasion resistance, tear strength and stain resistance than standard base fabrics.

3M® Night Reflective
The base construction of the reflective fabric allow light sources such as car headlights to bounce back off the fabric and illuminate.

AirFlow Tech
Ventilation

Outlast® Temperature Regulating Technology is renowned world wide as the product for temperature regulation.

Initially cool to touch the Outlast® microcapsules absorb excess heat. Stored heat is released back to the body as required resulting in a constant microclimate. Not too hot, not too cold, just right™.

Sympatex®

The Sympatex membrane is a 5mm thick membrane that is laminated on a textile base, providing apparel with protection against moisture.

The hydrophilic (water-attracting) elements of the Sympatex membrane absorb moisture (transpiration) in the form of vapour from the body and transport it from the inside to the outside.

CR39

This lens is the most common optical polymer in the ophthalmic field because of its high optical qualities. It has a higher scratch resistance than other plastic materials

Polycarbonate (PC)

This lens has an anti-scratch protection treatment and has excellent impact properties which make the lens ideal for sports use

Polarized

Available on certain styles, this lens treatment significantly reduces the contrast between light and shady zones. It eliminates part of the reflection light and as a result the eye is less stressed by changes in light.
